Mandatory Water Restriction in Petersburg Lifted

Water main break in the City of Petersburg has been repaired

(Petersburg, Virginia) — November 1, 2016. Petersburg Interim City Manager Tom Tyrrell announced this morning that the water main break on Upper Appomattox near Battersea was repaired at approximately 9:30PM on October 31, 2016. Water levels were restored overnight and the mandatory water restriction has been lifted. Water levels in the city did not reach critical levels, thus preserving the water quality and eliminating the need for a boil water advisory.
